3. The Magdeburg regional railroad headquarters was experiencing great difficulties in handling scheduled rail traffic. These difficulties were caused by the necessity of running a large number of special trains, allegedly troop trains, for the Soviets. *

25X1

* ☐ Comment. As compared with the last reported status of 21 February, the number of railroad cars that had to be made available for the Soviets increased considerably in connection with the present training program of the Soviet occupation forces.

 ☐ Comment. This average exceeds by about 60 cars, the corresponding figures listed in paragraph 1 of the present report. Increased loading performances on 4 and 5 March may have contributed to this result.
